ABSTRACT

In order to comply with federal law, all employers must take certain affirmative actions designed to remedy the effect of job discrimination, no matter how inadvertent or unintentional that discrimination might be. Employers, therefore, must actively recruit employees for all job levels from the ranks of minority groups and women. This directory is designed to assist in this recruitment process. It lists directories and professional rosters that can be helpful in identifying recruitment sources. And it contains the names and addresses of organizations that make specific types of referrals on a national, regional, or local basis. This directory is a supplement to "Affirmative Action and Equal Employment: A Guidebook for Employers," published by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. (Author/DS)

A DIRECTORY OF
RESOURCES FOR AFFIRMATIVE RECRUITMENT

March 1975

This Directory has been prepared as a supplement to the Affirmative Action and Equal Employment: A Guidebook for Employers, Volumes I and II, published by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. It should be used in conjunction with that publication, which provides detailed information on legal obligations and provides specific suggestions for effecting equal employment opportunity in recruitment and other employment practices.

This Directory is the result of a preliminary survey of resources conducted by EEOC's Office of Voluntary Programs in 1974. It is not a complete or comprehensive listing, but rather a starting point for employers seeking to expand their recruitment sources. Information on other useful sources will be welcomed for future listings.

All information on organizational resources was provided by the organizations themselves, and EEOC has not evaluated the nature or quality of services provided. Inclusion of a source, therefore, does not in any way indicate endorsement or recommendation by the Commission.

DUE TO THE RELATIVELY HIGH TURNOVER RATE IN RECRUITMENT RESOURCES, EEOC WILL PERIODICALLY PUBLISH SUPPLEMENTS TO THIS GUIDE LISTING NEW SOURCES AND ELIMINATING THOSE NO LONGER IN OPERATION.

USE OF THIS GUIDE WILL IN NO MANNER SERVE AS A DEFENSE SHOULD AN EMPLOYER BE INVOLVED IN LEGAL PROCEEDINGS OR INVESTIGATION RELATED TO A CHARGE OF DISCRIMINATION.

* Single copies of the Guidebook are available from EEOC-Affirmative Action, P. O. Box 1612, Springfield, VA 22151. Additional copies may be ordered from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, Stock No. 5215-00024, Price $2.45 per set.

INTRODUCTION

THE NEED FOR AFFIRMATIVE RECRUITMENT

Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended by the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972, makes illegal discrimination in employment because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) was established to ensure compliance with Title VII and to investigate charges or complaints of illegal employment discrimination.

Title VII covers all private employers, state and local governments, educational institutions, labor organizations, joint labor-management apprenticeship programs, and public and private employment agencies with 15 or more employees or members.

Experience in administering Title VII and other equal employment opportunity laws and regulations has demonstrated that recruitment practices often have an extremely unequal effect on certain groups in the population, even when an employer has no conscious intent to discriminate.

In many rulings under Title VII, the courts have found that where minorities and females are not participating in an employer's workforce at all job levels in reasonable relation to their presence in the population or workforce, the burden of proof is on the employer to show that this is not the result of discrimination -- however inadvertent. Such unequal participation may be a result of present practices or the effect of past discriminatory practices. In either case, certain positive affirmative actions, beyond establishment of "neutral" "non-discriminatory" practices, are required to remedy the effect.

The legal necessity for affirmative recruitment has been established in many court decisions. Consistently, where courts have found that the effect of present or past recruiting practices is discriminatory against groups protected by law, they have ordered specific affirmative recruitment, including numerical hiring goals and timetables for specified groups, to eliminate discrimination and to provide remedies for consequences of past discrimination.

Specific affirmative recruitment goals are also required for government contractors, where a utilization analysis indicates under-representation of minorities and females.*

If a self-audit indicates that you do not have reasonable representation of groups protected by law at all job levels, a thorough review and revision of recruitment practices should be a major priority for your organizations.

Affirmative efforts are needed:

- 1) In all phases of regular recruitment practices, to identify and eliminate discriminatory impact, and to assure that all groups receive a clear message that you offer equal employment opportunity.
- 2) To effectuate additional targeted recruitment to reach under-represented groups who will not otherwise receive such a message.

Both aspects of affirmative recruitment are fully covered in EEOC's publication, Affirmative Action and Equal Employment: A Guidebook for Employers. As a supplement to the Guidebook, the purpose of this Directory is to further identify resources and means of locating additional sources for affirmative recruitment of minorities and women.

Section I lists Directories and Professional Rosters which can be helpful in identifying recruitment sources.

Section II lists some of the organizations which make specified types of referrals on a national, regional or local basis. This is not intended to be an inclusive listing, but should provide a foundation for locating qualified candidates and sources of candidates for employment.

It is very important to develop and maintain contacts with a broad range of organizations, rather than relying upon one-time contacts or placing a few job orders with several better-known groups. Not all organizations will be immediate sources of job applicants. Some have referral or training programs or existing "talent banks"; others will help spread the word in the community and suggest additional sources.

II. ORGANIZATIONAL REFERRAL SOURCES FOR MINORITY AND FEMALE RECRUITMENT

On the following pages are listed some national and local organizational sources which should be useful for employers in implementing affirmative action programs. It should be re-emphasized that these listings are not complete or all-comprehensive -- nor does listing in this publication in any way indicate endorsement or recommendation of a source by EEOC. Information in this section was provided by the organizations themselves, in response to a preliminary survey conducted by EEOC's Office of Voluntary Programs in 1974.

The following comments may be helpful:

- . National sources should be useful in providing specific assistance, as described in the listings.
- . A number of Regional sources are listed as contacts only -- that is, they do not provide direct referrals, but will provide names and addresses of local member groups or training programs (Examples: Regional Manpower Offices, Regional NAACP, OIC and SER Offices).
- . Only a few local resources appear under the Regional listings. Many additional sources exist in local communities. Employers are advised to make serious effort to reach other sources in their own labor market areas.*
- . Many local sources which are not able to refer immediate suitable candidates should be contacted for future potential, and to help "spread the word".
- . Some local organizations listed here may not be up-to-date. New organizations are constantly forming and others may terminate or change their function.

If employer efforts are extensive, serious and sustained, and if an organization becomes known as a place where previously under-represented groups have equal opportunity at all job levels, it should be able to develop an adequate pool of qualified applicants to reach affirmative action goals.

STATE EMPLOYMENT SERVICES (STATE AND LOCAL OFFICES)

These are primary referral sources in all Regions (see under State (Employment Service) in local telephone directory) for locating professional, as well as clerical, technical, skilled and unskilled workers. Many have computerized job banks. These offices also serve as placement centers for many publicly-funded, job-training programs.

REGIONAL OFFICES, MANPOWER ADMINISTRATION, U.S. DEPT. OF LABOR

Central information sources for current federally-funded training programs (see regional listings).

STATE, COUNTY AND CITY HUMAN RESOURCES DEPARTMENTS*

These (or similarly titled) agencies, along with the Employment Service and Regional Manpower Office, are sources of information and referrals for many publicly-funded training programs and organizations serving minorities and females, such as:

Apprenticeship Training; Apprenticeship Outreach (including many skilled crafts);

Job Corps; Neighborhood Youth Corps;

Women in Community Service (WICS);

---

* Consult telephone directory or see Section I for Directory listing these agencies.

Work Incentive Program (WIN);
 Concentrated Employment Program (CEP);
 JOBS Program (federally-funded, on-the-job training);
 American Indian Training Programs;
 Community Action and other special local training programs.
 (Only a few of these local programs are in the following regional listings).

STATE AND CITY HUMAN RIGHTS AGENCIES*

VETERAN'S ADMINISTRATION (LOCAL OR REGIONAL OFFICES)

CITY, COUNTY AND STATE PROBATION AND PAROLE AGENCIES (Inquire also about work-release programs and skilled-trade training programs of local institutions).

STATE VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION PROGRAMS**

COMMUNITY ACTION AGENCIES

B. PRIVATE AGENCIES

AMERICAN G.I. FORUM
 P. O. BOX 5057
 CORPUS CHRISTI, TEXAS 78404

---

*Consult telephone directory or see Section I for Directory listing these agencies.

**As of June 1974, Federal Government contractors are required to undertake affirmative action in recruiting and hiring qualified handicapped persons.

NAT'L ASSOC. FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE (NAACP)

National membership organization. Does not have formal job referral service, but regularly services employers' job requests, directly or by contacting appropriate Regional Office and/or local branches (1700 nationwide). Local branches have broad community contacts with many potential qualified job applicants. Contact Regional Offices or consult telephone directory for local NAACP branch listing. (See national and regional listings).

OPPORTUNITIES INDUSTRIALIZATION CENTERS (OIC's) OF AMERICA, INC.

See national listing for general description. Approximately 115 local OIC's conduct varied skill training programs and provide referral and placement services. A few local OIC's are listed. Contact Regional Directors for locations of other OIC's. (See regional listings).

SER/JOBS FOR PROGRESS, INC. (Consult telephone directory)

See national listing for general description. Varied training programs, job development and placement services provided by 50 SER offices in 43 cities. (Some local SER programs are in regional listings. Contact National Office for other local programs).

URBAN LEAGUES

Local Urban Leagues provide referrals for jobs at all levels and participate in National Skills Bank. (See national listing). Local Leagues also conduct varied skill training and apprenticeship programs for women and minorities. Contact Regional Office or consult local telephone directory for address and telephone of Urban League cities in various regions. For non-Urban League Cities, contact nearest Regional Office (see regional listings).

C. OTHER SOURCES

Each community has a wide range of organizations representing or including minority groups and women which serve as formal or informal referral sources. Some suggestions:

- Minority and women's media* (for advertisements and information on community groups)
- High schools, vocational schools, community colleges and higher education institutions (placement offices, counselors, and alumni and alumnae associations)
- Social service and welfare agencies (members of local United Fund)
- YWCA and YMCA
- Settlement houses and community centers
- Block clubs, church and civic groups.
